Healthy Farmers = Higher Profits

Since launching our Farmer Wellness Initiative in 2022, we've been eagerly seeking funding for our efforts to support farmer wellness. Beyond the basics of mental and physical well-being, we believe that farmer wellness should be approached holistically and should include nutrition, financial literacy, good HR practices, kinesiology, stress management, community engagement, and so much more.

Mobilizing for Farmer Wellness
Supporting Your Mental, Physical and Financial Health

After all, healthy humans and happy farm crews miss fewer work days, return season after season, and cost less to train and hire. Better stress management means better decision-making in the field and in the office. Improved farmer wellness directly improves the farm's bottom line!

Thankfully, in partnership with Virtua Health and Pinelands Preservation Alliance, NOFA NJ is an excited collaborator in Mobilizing For Farmer Wellness, a Northeast SARE grant project that is bringing experts and direct wellness services to farmers and farmworkers throughout NJ.

02/14 - Print-Making Art Show & Fundraiser for NOFA NJ

This live printmaking event will mark the culmination of Nancy Hackett's Anne-Reeves Artist Residency. Hackett will activate the Sands lobby with finished prints on display and live linocut printmaking, offering visitors an opportunity to witness the printmaking process in real time. Guests are invited to observe as carved blocks are inked and printed by hand, celebrating both the residency conclusion and the power of process-based art.

This ongoing body of work explores the ecology of Central Jersey with an understated but important focus on farms and food systems. The reference images for the prints were from farms and gardens in New Jersey where Hackett has worked. In support of our local food system, a portion of the profits from these sales will be donated to Northeast Organic Farming Association of NJ (NOFA NJ).

Opportunities in Organic Act Reintroduced in Congress

This legislation is a critical opportunity to reduce barriers to organic farming, strengthen organic supply chains, and ensure that farmers have the support they need to transition to—and remain in—organic production. As demand for organic food continues to grow while domestic production lags, the bill offers a timely and practical investment in U.S. organic agriculture.
